HIGH POINT – Case goods resource Legacy Classic has presented its highest sales award to Jerry Farmer, Curt Goss and Bob Anguish, all of which represent Texas.

The Kevin O’ Connor Salesperson of the Year Award, named for the longtime President and CEO of company parent Samson Marketing, is given to the top individual or team that increases their territory’ s accounts and business across all categories. It also recognizes other attributes such as overall professionalism.

“Team Texas” as the company referred to them in a press release, also received awards for Largest Dollar Increase for Legacy Classic; Largest Percentage Increase for Legacy Classic, Largest Number of New Accounts and Largest Dollar Increase for New Accounts for both Legacy Classic and sister youth furniture resource LC Kids.

“Jerry, Curt and Bob are all true professionals in every sense and admired not only by Legacy Classic, but highly regarded by the industry and their retailers,” said Don Essenberg, president and CEO of Legacy Classic and Legacy Classic Kids. “The team consistently represents Legacy Classic and LC Kids in a positive manner and is obviously committed.

“Team Texas was awarded with several accolades this year. We truly appreciate their continued hard work and the support they give to each of their retailers.”
