

Universal partners with Houston designer for new collection

Nina Magon furniture line to be unveiled this spring

Furniture Today Staff, January 17, 2019

Nina Magon design for Universal

H POINT – Universal Furniture has partnered with Houston-based designer Nina Magon for a spring 2019 furniture collection that will bear her name and be marketed under the Universal brand.

The 50-piece collection will include case goods, with dining, bedroom and occasional furniture as well as upholstery.

Nina Magon design for Universal

Magon is creative director for Contour Interior Design, which has offices in Houston and Miami. Universal said that she is renowned for a modern aesthetic that “balances high design with glamorous appeal.” It also noted that her work in residential and commercial interiors has been praised in magazines such as Interior Design and Hospitality Design.

“The opportunity with Universal Furniture really excites me,” Magon said. “We’re going to create something distinctive that offers accessible, livable luxury.”

“We had the chance to meet Nina at fall market a year ago,” said Neil MacKenzie, Universal’s director of marketing. “Her passion for design was, and is, infectious. We’re excited to work with her on a collection that will offer our retail partners a highly sophisticated, European modern style.”

SPONSORED MESSAGE

HFMSE 2019 Set For Hickory, NC In July

For the first time, HFMSE 2019 will be held in North Carolina in response to attendees’ and exhibitors’ feedback. ‘Hickory is a great central location,’ according to show director, Lorie Gross. ‘This should be our biggest event ever,’ said Gross. Learn more and register today!

Furniture Today Staff | Staff Editors

Furniture Today covers all the news concerning manufacturers, retailers and suppliers in the home furnishings sector.